SOURCE:

1. In January 1953 the Supply Service of the Chinese Communist Mongolian-Suiyuan Military Region,¹ in conjunction with the Mongolian-Suiyuan Joint Construction Work Bureau, undertook a military construction program in Kueisui (N 40-47, E 111-37).² By 20 May an initial investment of JMP 25 billion had been put into this enterprise.
2. To be constructed are an arms repair plant, an auto repair factory, an army food depot, a firing range, a military region hospital with a proposed capacity of 280 beds, and a uniform and bedding factory with a proposed annual production sufficient to meet the needs of 30,000 men.
